

After preparing the given dataset and running it through the ML model with the highest accuracy score (Logistic Regression), the following interpretations can be made. For passenger class, a higher proportion of people survived vs died the higher class they were, to the point where more people in class 1 survived than died. For gender, there is a clear trend that males were more likely to die compared to females.